Subject: "The Providential" published at New Providence High School

The Providential, a student-produced online newspaper at New Providence High School, has published the first edition of the 2019/2020 school year. Over 25 students contribute content as writers or photographers.

The Providential has been published steadily since the inception of New Providence High School. Journalism students collaborated on a hard-copy broadsheet monthly paper for many decades. All aspects of production were student-run including layout, editing and design. In 2012, the paper went online, staying abreast of changing technology.

Investigative Journalism was added to the Language Arts curriculum this year along with many other new courses in various subject areas. Current student contributors are enrolled in the Investigative Journalism course or The Providential extracurricular club. The Providential is updated as current news is reported and published.
